We, the Class of 1915, put this book before the public, hoping it may meet your hearty approval. It is somewhat reduced in size and price, due to the fact that it was edited the last month of school. We wish to heartily thank all those who have helped us to put it before the public as a remembrance of the High School Year 1915.

BESS COLEMAN

Bess is short and rather stout,
And when she runs her curls bob out.

ARLENE GOODWIN

Although Arlene is not at all lame,
She is apt to be walking with a Cain.

ORA STAGE

If Ora should a lawyer be,
The jury surely would all agree.

EVA ORWIG

Eva's the Senior with eyes of brown,
Who's always quiet and never frowns.

WINIFRED WALCOTT

When pronouncing big words, she's apt to pout,
Especially when George tries to help her out.

FLOY HAMMOND

Floy, who's short and very sedate,
Has the Valedictory as her fate.

EVA MARTIN

Eva's great on going on spreeds,
With motorcycle rides she quite agrees.

MARJORIE KUNKLE

Marjorie's the girl whose deportment is C,
She keeps things lively and says, "Oh Gee!"

RUSSELL BAIR

Russell, who has never been late,
Will have the Salutatory as his fate.

LAURA BRUNSON

Laura, the blonde, the baby, the flirt,
Is always lively, awake, and alert.

JOYCE MILLER

Joyce likes bob-loads, and picnics and such,
But for school books, she don't care much.

RALPH ELSTON

He is the tallest in the school,
Nix on deportment is his rule.

CONSTANCE WILLIAMSON

"You with the big feet," was what was yelled
At this Senior star when the play was held.

MILDRED LEININGER

Mildred, whose music is hard to surpass,
Manages the social affairs of our class.

FORD ZIMMER

Ford, our president, whose temper's always steady,
Won't let us adjourn till he gets good and ready.

Class Prophecy

We, the undersigned, in order to bring before the public the future of the members of the Class of nineteen hundred and fifteen, do submit the following prophecy, that—

I. Ora Stage, a graduate of Angola High School, and also Michigan University, was admitted to the bar in nineteen hundred and twenty, and is now a prominent lawyer of New York. He recently became famous by bringing about the freedom of Harry K. Thaw.

II. Winifred Walcott, once popularly known as a pianist, has just returned from the European war zone after spending several years there as a Red Cross nurse. She has been helping to fight the deadly plague of typhus, for which a remedy has recently been discovered.

III. Constance Williamson, the famous contralto opera singer, is now filling an engagement with the Metropolitan Opera Company which is at the present time making a tour of Southern Europe.

IV. Arline Goodwin, the popular suffrage leader of California, after a strenuous campaign was successful in defeating the male candidate for the office of mayor of San Francisco.

V. Russel O. Bair has recently been appointed chief engineer of the Inter-Lake Canal which is to extend from Gary to Toledo. Mr. Bair is a very competent man for this position, which assures success to this great and much needed undertaking.

VI. Joyce Miller, a popular leader of the Feminist movement, is making a tour of the larger cities advocating equal rights.

VII. Ralph Elston, a recent graduate of Rush Medical School, has attained world fame in discovering a successful remedy for leprosy. This is one of the greatest steps in modern science.

VIII. Floy Hammond has become very wealthy through the sale of her pictures. She is now president of the Chicago Art Institute.

IX. Eva Orwig, after teaching in Oberlin college, is now holding the honored position which for many years was held by Ella Flagg Young. So far she has proved to be a very successful person for this place.

X. Eva Martin has just published her latest novel which is destined to be a classic of American literature. This volume deals with the greatest problems of sociology.

XI. Laura Brunson is a moving picture star. She has been employed in the Vitagraph Company for several years. At present it is thought that she will win in the contest of the moving picture actresses.

XII. Ford Zimmer, the president of the Senior Class of nineteen hundred and fifteen, became in nineteen hundred and twenty-five the leader of Kryl's Band, after the death of Bohumir Kryl. Mr. Zimmer had been a member of the band for several years and as he proved to be the most competent, succeeded to the leadership.

ATHLETICS

Athletics

On September 17, 1914, the Athletic Association of the Angola High School was organized under the State rules. The officers elected were as follows:

PresidentPrincipal G. L. Letts
 Vice-PresidentRussell O. Bair
 SecretaryMiss Laura Brunson
 Treasurer Ford Zimmer

After becoming a member of the State Association, work was immediately commenced, by organizing a girls' basket ball team with Arline Goodwin as captain, and a boys' team with Ford Zimmer as captain and Tom Emerson as manager. The first practicing was done on the out-door court, where also the first few games were played, but as soon as the gymnasium was procured work was begun in earnest, and before the season closed a great many successful games had been played on this floor.

The Association was very fortunate this year in securing the services of Mr. Callahan as coach.

It takes this opportunity for thanking the Faculty and School Board for their co-operation and support, without which athletics would not have been near as successful at it has.

CAST OF MOST IMPORTANT CHARACTERS

Jack Abbott	Ford Zimmer
George Higgins	Ralph Elston
Fred Lawton	Tom Emerson
Raymond Fitzhenry	Erwin Mast
Alice Bennett	Marjorie Kunkle
Ruth French	Constance Williamson
Agnes Arabella Bates	Mildred Leininger
Blanche Westcott	Laura Brunson
Marjorie Tyndall	Joyce Miller
Mrs. Higgins	Winifred Walcott

December eighteenth, nineteen hundred fifteen, the Seniors of the Angola High School presented, at the Croxton Theatre, the play, "Lost, A Chaperon," which proved to be a thoroughly pleasing performance. The fact that the theatre was well filled when the curtain rose was largely instrumental in encouraging the players to do their best. The audience was appreciative, moreover, and most generous in its applause of the students who took part. The play was exceedingly simple in plot and its presentation depended largely upon the abandon and enthusiasm of the cast. Each part was well acted in a delightfully natural manner.

It is difficult to select the actors deserving special mention, as every character was faithfully portrayed. Alice, Ruth, Agnes and Blanch are enjoying a week-end house party at Marjorie Tyndall's cottage at Lake Sherwood, Maine. Mrs. Higgins, the chaperon, fails to arrive at the appointed time and the girls are left to spend the night alone. Marjorie informs the girls that her cousin, George, is in camp just across the lake, and that if necessary his aid can be procured. Ruth, Alice and Agnes, each unknown to the other, go to the boys' camp and invite the boys to their camp to frighten the other girls. George, who has unfortunately fallen into the river, has no dry clothes to wear and is confined to his tent during the visit of each of the girls.

He sends Jack as his representative. Jack would have had considerable fun with the girls but for the interruption of Fred, who "wants to be in on it too." The boys tell the girls that it will be impossible for them to visit their camp. Nevertheless, that evening they exchange clothes with some lumbermen and go to the girls' cottage. Not knowing who any of them are, the girls are surprised and terribly frightened. The boys order their supper and take full possession of the place until a little later when they, themselves, are surprised by the real lumbermen, who are college men working in the lumber camps. One of them is Raymond Fitzhenry, a poet and the lover of Agnes.

Amid the excitement that follows and just as Raymond embraces Agnes, the chaperon enters. She is very much shocked to find these young ladies entertaining all these young men in the absence of a chaperon. The true state of affairs is soon made known to her and also to the girls, who are very much relieved to learn that, instead of being a raid by real lumbermen, it is only a joke.

One of the cleverest of the lighter parts of this play, which was taken by Stirling McClellan, was that of Zekiel, a country lad. Other minor parts were taken by Floy Hammond, Bess Coleman, Russel Bair and Ora Stage. That the minor parts were well brought out was one of the merits of the production. This was due to the untiring efforts of Professor Charles Shank, who directed the rehearsals.

All of the participants, as well as Professor Shank, are to be most warmly congratulated on presenting one of the cleverest and most successful amateur performances ever attempted in Angola. The support given them by theatre-goers is also a matter of great satisfaction, the audience being more representative and much larger than anticipated. The fact that the Angola Orchestra rendered an unusually good musical program between the acts, was a great asset to the performance.

A High School Romance

(Completed by using the names of the Seniors, the members of the Faculty and the Board of Trustees.)

A young man whose name I shall not disclose but which might as well have been Stephen, and whose last name was either Smith or ElSTON, desired a young lady, MARJORIE KUNKLE, (a name which does not fit well into a romance like this, but which would fit excellently into a real one,) to spend a holiday with him. Casting about for something to do they decided to take a trip either by "YOT" or STAGE. Deciding upon the former, they hastened to Lake James. At first the water was calm; but soon the wind blew WILDER and WILDER. They were soon going at a terrible rate and could scarcely DODGE the rocks. "We can't KEEP this up much longer. LETTS run in to the shore. See there by that little wall," cried our heroine. They succeeded in landing, but not before the WALL cut a hole in the boat. "This adventure will be a GOOD one to tell to our friends," said our hero.

"O, Steve! STEVA! bunch of friends are meeting at Uncle Tom's tonight to discuss LEINING or marking out the tennis court. If our FORD don't get unmanageable again and run over the MILLER or COLEMAN, we'll get there before the big POW(WOW)'LL be over."

"Well, if we don't get there they'll miss WILLIAM ('s) son."

"This trip reminds me," said our young gallant, "of the trip I made to BRUNSON, Michigan, last Summer, when you wrote me that letter on that HAMMOND typewriter, telling me about that pet BAIR climbing the pole to get into the MARTIN house and when he came down he clawed his keeper's scalp or WIG off, you didn't know which."

"In answer to my question as to where your affections were, you answered in that letter: 'My HART man is not yours as of yet, but you may win it if you have a FAIR-FIELD.'"

[Prepared for use at the Faculty's reception to the Seniors, by the Entertainment Committee, Mr. and Mrs. Seibel and Mr. and Mrs. Fairfield.)

“Engraving for College and School Publications”

It will save you money in getting out your Annual

This book should be in the hands of every editor and business manager. It will save you money—prevent costly mistakes in laying out your work and in buying engravings. It is a book of thorough instruction. Contains 164 pages and over 300 illustrations. It covers every phase of the engraving question relating to all college and school publications.

It was prepared at great cost by our staff of engraving experts, who are specialists in the production of half-tones, color plates, zinc etchings, and designs for college and school publications. This book is not for sale, but is loaned, as a special privilege, to the staff of each publication for which we do the engraving. Write us and we will tell you how to obtain a copy of this valuable book for your use.
